THE CRUCIBLE'S 9TH ANNUAL FIRE ARTS FESTIVAL® PERFORMANCE LINE-UP ANNOUNCED

From July 15 to July 18 The Crucible's 9th Fire Arts Festival, a spectacular open-air exhibition of astounding performances, fire sculpture and interactive art, will light up the sky each evening from 8 PM to midnight at The Crucible's NEW Fire Arts Arena in the freeway canyon lands of West Oakland. Tickets for this must-see event are now on sale.

This year's featured musical performance will be the world premiere of Dan Cantrell's The Rootabaga Opera, performed Thursday through Saturday at 9:00 as the Arena comes alive with fire. Based on Carl Sandburg's Rootabaga Stories, the work incorporates dance, theater, puppetry, and (of course) fire.

In addition, appearing on the stage each evening will be a variety of performances to awe and amaze; from circus arts and fire performers to hip-hop dance and eclectic music, including –

• Amanda Palmer of the Dresden Dolls • Titanium Sporkestra • El Circo • Aziz Abbatiello • Loco Bloco • Fire Arts Collective • Nocturnal Sunshine • Poor Man's Whiskey • Black Mahal • Flo-Ology • Axis Dance Company • Fire Arts Collective • Flamenco Fury • Frank Olivier • Copper Lantern Fire Theater • Capacitor • Vulcano Crew • Bumpitythump • Simon Chabon • The Embodiment Project • Lucero

Amanda Palmer of the Dresden Dolls

The Fire Arts Festival is a blazing nexus of science, engineering and art, with amazing installations and gigantic sculptures by prominent artists such as:

- Michael Christian's Elevation • Rebecca Anders' Fishbug • Matisse Enzer's Flamethrower Shooting Gallery
- Mark Perez with Mousetrap • Alan Rorie's Neuron Chamber • Christian Ristow's Hand of Man • And many more

The expansive new Fire Arts Arena is nearly three times larger than last year, accommodating even more and larger art installations, performance areas, food and merchandise vendors than any other previous festival. Visitors can stroll through ten acres of art; enjoy tasty food and beverages, shopping at unique vendor booths, and listen to some great music, all while exploring the world of fire and light. The 10-acre new Arena is located in Oakland at the foot of the Bay Bridge, off West Grand Avenue at Wake Avenue, near the Oakland Army Base. Easily accessed and visible from all major freeways, the new location offers plenty of free parking for those who drive, and is still public-transit friendly with free shuttles running from West Oakland BART.

This year, going to the Fire Arts Festival is more affordable than ever, with lower prices for youth 6-17, and all service fees are included in the ticket price. Advance adult tickets range from $35 to $50 and Crucible members receive a $5 discount any night. Tickets may be purchased at the door (if available) and range from $40 to $55. To buy tickets in advance and for more information: Visit www.thecrucible.org. We recommend advance purchase of tickets; events at The Crucible often sell out.

Fire Arts Festival is The Crucible's major fundraising event, and proceeds benefit arts education programs for youth and adults. You can further support The Crucible's arts education programs with the purchase of a Patron Pass. By adding $50 to the ticket purchase price for any day, you'll get access to The Crucible's Patron Pavilion with its own courtyard, hosted bar, complimentary appetizers, preferred seating, and NO LINES. The Patron Pass also provides access to preferred viewing areas and other amenities, plus you'll be helping keep the creative fires burning at The Crucible. Crucible members at the Inferno level and above receive free entry into the Patron Pavilion.

About The Fire Arts Festival:

Designed & Produced by Michael Sturtz, Executive Director of The Crucible, featuring an amazing cast of artists, dancers and performers that reflects the diversity of the Bay Area's arts community, from classically trained musicians to outrageous fire performers; mind-boggling sculpture and art, and The Crucible's talented crew of blacksmiths, metal casters, and glassworkers.

The commissioning and production of Dan Cantrell's The Rootabaga Opera is made possible by The Wallace Alexander Gerbode Foundation and The William and Flora Hewlett Foundation Emerging Composers 2007 Initiative. This event benefits arts education programs for youth and adults at The Crucible.
